David Barr KC has a wide experience of civil litigation both at first instance and appellate level.

Administrative and public law work includes public inquiries, inquests, human rights and other cases. His employment practice has focused on demanding cases, particularly at appellate level. Personal injury work encompasses a wide range of cases and typically involves high value claims or difficult issues.

David is recognised in the field of employment law for acting for the Lord Chancellor in R (UNISON) v Lord Chancellor [2020] AC 869. He appeared in both the Court of Appeal and Supreme Court in this case which decided whether fees imposed in the employment tribunals were lawful.

David successfully defended the Ministry of Defence in the Court of Appeal and on an application for permission to appeal to the Supreme Court in Hainsworth v MOD [2014] IRLR 728, a case concerning the scope of disability discrimination law.

Other notable employment cases include Thorne v House of Commons Commission [2014] IRLR 260 (collective bargaining of the pay of House of Commons Commission staff) and USDAW & Others v Secretary of State for Business Industry and Skills & Others [2014] 2 CMLR 45, CA (litigation arising from the collapse of retail chain Woolworths).

After many years of appearing regularly before employment tribunals David has more recently concentrated on appellate work and cases involving particularly complex issues.

He has a keen interest in the application of European Union law to those areas of domestic law in which he practises. He served on the Attorney General's panels of civil counsel from 1999 until he took silk in 2014.
